

I have been a satellite radio subscriber for about 3 years now, and truly love the service. While I do not believe XM will be able to match the Quality or quantity of local news, weather, and traffic coverage available on our local radio stations, I do not think they should be prevented from trying. At worst, they will lose money, and at best they will either succeed or the local stations will improve service to compete with them. Either way, the consumer will benefit.
